

All in the month of May, When all things blossom, As in my bed I lay, Sleep it grew loathsome. Up I rose, and did walk Over yon mountains Through meadows and through dales, Over rocks and fountains; I heard a voice to sing, Sweetheart, come cheer me, Thou hast been long away, Lady, lie near me.